Teambuilders

- Who's in the Room?
- Find Someone Who
  - Move around the room to try to find someone for each statement. Have that person put his or her name in the box. Each person can only sign one box and it must make a true statement about that person.

Participant Data Tracking

Before we get started...

- Rank yourself on the listed learning target.
- Then, think about where you'd like to be at the end of this session and set a goal.

Something to Think About

What Are YOUR Goals for Today?

What Does the Research Say?

Providing Clear Learning Objectives

1. break apart standard
2. share a 2, 3, and 4
3. students assess their own work
4. students look at teacher assessment of their work
5. students set goals for learning
6. trend/track progress
7. reflect at the end of unit

Benefits of Goal Setting

- Providing Clear Learning Goals and Scales
- Tracking Student Progress
- Celebrating Success

When a classroom teacher embraces these strategies and involves students in an authentic way, the combination can boost student success, invigorate the teaching/learning process, and create a classroom culture where students take more responsibility for their own learning. ~ Dr. Marzano
